Discussion Points	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• How should your profile picture look? Should it be just like you? Does a real photo give away too much personal information? Should you use a different picture?• Does everyone lie online to make themselves look better? Is this a good or a bad thing? Or is it somewhere in between?• How can your personal details be unsafe? It's not as though someone would come round to your home...• Is it ever ok to share other people's information without permission? Roleplay Explaining to a friend who is new to the internet the difference between private and public information
Fillers and fast finisher activities	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Create a new profile for yourself as a new character in the animation.• Draw a picture of the 'real' you and the 'online' you.• Create a safe profile and an unsafe profile for a character in a book you are reading or a film you have seen• Make a table with two columns and fill them with examples of private and public information• Make a top-tips leaflet or set of information cards with advice about setting up an online profile
